The War in the Far East

A report has reached Tokio that the Japanese torpedo-boat fleet reattacked the Russian fleet at Port Arthur February 15, and it is thought that one Russian warship was damaged.

In a dispatch dated Port Arthur, February 13, a correspondent of the London Times gives a description of seven Russian warships which he says are lying disabled there. They include the battle-ships Sevastopol and Petropav-lovsk, which have not been named in previous reports of the action.

The correspondent says that altogether eleven Russian ships were put out of action at Port Arthur. Continuing, he declares that the Japanese were driven from the neighborhood of Kinchau, near Niuchwang, after a skirmish, in which 150 Japanese were taken prisoners and 70 Russians killed.

A dispatch from Tokio, dated Feb-ruary 14, is published in Paris in which the correspondent says that wounded Japanese who have reached there from Port Arthur declare that on the morn-Port Arthur declare that on the morning of February 6 the Japanese squadron, composed of fifty-five vessels, including transports, received orders to sail for Port Arthur. The night attack was made by the torpedo-boats, none of which was injured. During the bombardment of the Russian fort between 11 o'clock and noon on February of all the attacking vessels were hit by 9 all the attacking vessels were hit by the Russian fire. The cruiser I wate had her three decks pierced by a shell and the battle-ship Fuji's smokestack was destroyed. No ship, however, was in-jured to the extent of necessitating dry docking.

In another dispatch from Tokio, dated Feb. 16, it is said the local newspapers are publishing long accounts of the ill-treatnest of Japanese in Manchuria, and that the Japanese government has requested the United States to take measures for the protection of Japanese subjects there.

The work of repairing the damaged Russian battle-ships is progressing rapidly at Port Arthur. The Chinese workmen were panic-stricken by the bombardment, but are now working well, regardless of the approach of the Chinese New York Lawstication shows that New Year. Investigation shows that the city and fortress were wholly undam-

Reports from the interior indicate that the Cossacks are mobilizing with great enthusiasm. In the Amour district they are riding in squade from village to vil-lage, waving Russian flags and demandng an early chance to meet the enemy

As has previously been stated, the Russian second-class cruiser Boyarin was blown up by a mine on February 13 in the same manner as was the Russian torpedo transport Yenisci. She had on poard 197 officers and men, all of whom, it is understood, were lost. No details of the disaster have been given out. Capt. Stepanof was blown up with the torpedo-gunboat Yenisei.

Lieut. Gen. Ivanoff, governor general and commander of the troops in Turkes-tan, has gone to Tashkeld, with Gen. Sakharoff, chief of the staff of the military district of Turkestan. It is said in high military circles in Petersburg that Gen. Ivanoff has been instructed that Gen. The spirit of patriotism at Moscow among the Muscovites has resulted in the rough handling of a number of persons who failed to take off their hats while the crowds were singing the national hymn. It is even reported that some of the offenders were killed.

Ice Bridge at Niagara.

The ice bridge and ice mountain at Niagara Falls have reached unusual proportions. Such a large mass of ice has been brought down from the lakes that the mountain has approached to within 25 feet of the crest of the cataract. The trees and rocks on Goat Island and on either bank are covered with frost and glittering ice and present a remarkably beautiful appearance. As the ice bridge grows with the accumulation of broken | 2 ice coming down the river it is believed that the increase will continue for a month, as the upper lakes have thicker ice than for several years past. Thous-ands of people viewed the ice scenery.
